Passage 1:

Doctors in Britain are worried because British teenagers eat lots of chips, sweets and fat food. Most teenagers don't have enough fruit or vegetables and more than one million British school children are overweight. Some teenagers say that they don't have time to eat good food, but kids who have a poor diet often have health problems when they are older. Americans have been familiar with fast food for a long time, it was born there. American fast food is now a part of life far beyond the shores of United States. McDonald's Pizza Hut, Burger King have restaurants all over the world. Now doctors are giving young people books and games about a good diet. Having healthy, well-balanced diet can help you feel better and live longer.

Passage 2:

Technology has become an important part of our daily lives. It has changed our lives a lot. In many ways, it makes life more comfortable for us: we can send messages quickly through the Internet, cook meals in a few minutes in a microwave, and book train tickets online instead of walking to the station. However, in our increasingly technology-driven world, have we become addicted to technology?

Not very long ago, many children enjoyed reading a good book in their free time. Nowadays, many young people prefer playing video games or watching television. Some people even say they can't go without watching their favorite TV program, or without having access to the Internet.

Similarly, sending letters has become a thing of the past. It has been replaced by email, instant messaging and social media. However, the existence of social media has, in some ways, turned us into anti-social beings. Instead of hanging out with friends and seeing them face-to-face, we now spend a lot of time communicating online. Although online communication enables us to keep in touch with loved ones in different countries, we shouldn't forget the value of real-life human communication. It is, after all, in our nature to socialize with others!
